Cold-Pan Seared Salmon (No Added Fat)

The salmon cooks in its own fat — no oil or butter — so a fillet gives about 30 g of protein and 3 g of omega-3 fats, plus plenty of vitamin D, B12 and selenium. It is well salted (about 1 g sodium a serve); the salsa is optional.

Diet notes: Carnivore if you leave out the fresh mint, garlic, jalapeño, lime juice, ripe mango, shallot and virgin olive oil; Low carb (9.1 g net carbs) but not keto: 54% of the energy is from fat, and keto meals get about 60% or more; Low saturated fat (3.9 g, 9.9% of the energy).

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Cut the salmon crosswise into 4 equal fillets so they cook evenly. Dissolve the kosher salt in the water and brine the fillets for 15 minutes (on the counter is fine), then pat them very dry. 1:02
2. Sprinkle ½ tsp salt and ½ tsp pepper over a cold 12 inches (12 in) nonstick frying pan — no oil. Lay the fillets in the cold pan skin side down and season the tops with the remaining salt and pepper. 1:49
3. Put the pan over medium-high heat and cook without moving for 6–8 minutes, until the fat renders out of the skin and the bottom ¼ inch of the fish turns opaque. The salt layer stops it sticking. 3:07
4. Flip the fillets flesh side down and cook 6–8 minutes more, until the flesh is browned and the centre reads 125 °F. Lift out. 3:36
5. If making the salsa, stir the diced mango, jalapeño, shallot, lime juice, mint, olive oil, garlic and salt together and spoon a little over each fillet. 4:22

> Tip Starting in a cold pan renders the fat slowly and keeps thin ends from overcooking. Brining for just 15 minutes seasons the fish. Buy one centre-cut piece and cut it yourself for even fillets.
