Firm tofu and peanuts give about 22 g of plant protein and more than half a day's calcium a serve, and the bowl is loaded with fresh herbs, lettuce and sprouts. It is fully plant-based and uses only half a tablespoon of oil for four.

Diet notes: Low saturated fat (1.7 g, 4% of the energy); Gluten-free with a swap: Use tamari and a gluten-free vegetarian stir-fry (mushroom) sauce.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Trim the leek. Mince a short piece of the white part and cut the green part into thin strips. Rinse the tofu, pat it dry and cut it into fairly thick slices so they hold together. 0:49
2. Heat a wok over medium-high heat, add the oil and stir-fry the minced leek and lemongrass for 20 seconds. 1:35
3. Add the tofu and pan-fry 5–6 minutes until golden. Add the leek strips, soy sauce and stir-fry sauce, toss and cook 2–3 minutes more. 1:47
4. Turn off the heat, add the bean sprouts and toss 2–3 minutes in the residual heat, then season with black pepper. 2:05
5. Build each bowl with lettuce, then rice noodles, the tofu stir-fry, pickles, peanuts and plenty of mint and coriander. Serve with chilli, lime and a dipping sauce, or toss it all together as a cold noodle salad. 2:13

> Tip Serve with a vegetarian nuoc cham or soy-lime dipping sauce (not included above). The stir-fry also works over hot rice. Keeps 2 days; store noodles and herbs separately.
