Chicken Liver Pâté with Butter

105 min · Serves 16 · 124 kcal a serve · Video 14:17 · Ketogenic Woman

Carnivore · Gluten-free ingredients · No nuts listed

Liver is one of the richest food sources of vitamin A and B12 and also gives folate and some iron: a 2-tbsp serve gives about a day's vitamin A and more than a day's B12. The butter makes it high in saturated fat, so keep portions small.

Diet notes: Keto (0.3 g net carbs a serve).

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Rinse and drain the chicken livers and pat them dry with paper towel. There's no need to trim them, since everything gets blended. 2:29
2. Melt part of the butter in a frying pan over medium heat and cook the livers, turning, until browned outside and only slightly pink inside (cook them through if you prefer). 2:50
3. Add the rest of the butter to the pan, let it melt, then take the pan off the heat and leave it to cool for 10–15 minutes. 4:58
4. Scrape the livers, butter and every bit of pan juice into a blender with ½ tsp onion salt and 60 ml cream. Blend on medium for about 20 seconds until smooth, then taste for salt. 6:20
5. Spoon into a dish and refrigerate for about an hour, until it sets to a soft, scoopable texture. Serve cold with slices of roast beef, crisp bacon or pork rinds, or alongside a meat meal. 8:54

> Tip Makes just over 470 ml (16 serves of 2 tbsp). Time includes about an hour of chilling (our estimate). Keep chilled and eat within 3–4 days. The cook uses onion salt; plain salt keeps it strictly carnivore. Beef or lamb liver also works.
