20 min · Serves 4 · 363 kcal a serve · Video 12:24 · America's Test Kitchen

Carnivore · Paleo · Gluten-free ingredients · No dairy listed · No nuts listed

Just beef, pepper and salt, cooked in the steak's own rendered fat with no added oil. A serve gives about 40 g of protein, nearly a day's vitamin B12 and about three-quarters of a day's zinc.

Diet notes: Low carb (0.2 g net carbs) but not keto: 52% of the energy is from fat, and keto meals get about 60% or more.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Pat the steaks very dry and season both sides with pepper. Don't salt them now: either salt 45 minutes to a day ahead (about 1 tsp kosher salt a steak), or salt after slicing, because salt added just before cooking pulls moisture to the surface. 5:35
2. Lay the steaks 1 inch apart in a cold 12 inch non-stick frying pan with no oil. Turn the heat to high and cook 2 minutes, flip and cook 2 minutes more. They will look grey; the fat and juices are rendering out. 6:12
3. Flip again and turn the heat down to medium so the steaks sizzle gently without smoking or spattering. Keep flipping every 2 minutes, mopping up any browned bits with the meat, so the crust builds in layers. 8:06
4. After 4–10 minutes at medium (depending on thickness), check the centre from the side with a thermometer and take the steaks off at 120–125°F for medium-rare. 10:19
5. Rest on a board for 5 minutes, slice (thinly, if you like it the cook's way) and finish with a sprinkle of coarse salt. 10:41

> Tip Boneless ribeye of the same thickness works the same way; aim for steaks about 1½ inches thick. One steak serves 2. Leftovers keep 3 days in the fridge; slice thinly and eat cold or warm briefly.
