About 38 g protein and 9 g net carbs a bowl: the chicken and jute leaves carry the meal, with only a spoonful of sugar in the whole pot.

Diet notes: Low carb (8.6 g net carbs) but not keto: 49% of the energy is from fat, and keto meals get about 60% or more.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Bring a large pot of water to the boil with the bay leaves, cardamom, onion and tomato. Add the chicken pieces, cover and simmer 20–30 minutes until the meat comes away from the bone. 0:30
2. Lift out the chicken, onion and tomato and keep 4¼ cups of the clear broth. Pull the chicken off the bones in large pieces. 2:00
3. Heat the broth until very hot but not boiling and season with salt and pepper. Stir in the frozen molokhia and the sugar and keep stirring about 2 minutes; take it off the heat as soon as it starts to bubble so it doesn't separate. Don't cover it. 3:15
4. For the garlic-coriander fry (ta'leya), melt the ghee in a frying pan, fry the garlic until it just colours, then add the coriander and a pinch of salt. 4:45
5. Add the chicken to the pan and toss it over a higher heat until lightly browned and coated in the garlic mix. 5:37
6. Pour a ladle of molokhia into the pan, stir, then tip everything back into the pot and stir through. Serve hot, with the chicken in each bowl. 6:05

> Tip Eaten with rice or baladi bread. Serves 4 is our estimate. The description says 1 lb chicken and 2 spoons ghee; on camera he uses a 2¼ lb chicken, 1 spoon ghee and a head of garlic, as here. Reheat gently without boiling.

The method is a summary in our words, in English — the video (in Arabic) shows every step.
