Grated carrot and ginger fermented in their own juice: rich in vitamin A (as beta-carotene) for about 16 kcal and 1 g fibre a ¼-cup serve. It is salty — about 600 mg sodium a serve — so use it as a small topping.

Diet notes: Low carb (2.8 g net carbs) but not keto: 5% of the energy is from fat, and keto meals get about 60% or more; Low saturated fat (0 g, 0% of the energy).

Ingredients 3 · MAKES 12 × ¼ CUP (40 G)

- [ ] 8 carrots, grated (about 440 g)
- [ ] a 5 cm knob of fresh ginger, finely grated
- [ ] 2 tbsp coarse sea salt (or 1 tbsp fine sea salt)

Amounts in metric units, converted from the cook's and rounded — the video has the originals.

Allergens found in the listed ingredients: none. Worked out from the ingredient list, not tested. Stock, sauces, spice mixes and other packaged foods can contain allergens, so always read the labels on what you buy. If you have a food allergy, don't rely on this.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Grate the carrots on a box grater (or in a food processor) to make about 950 ml, and grate the ginger finely so it spreads evenly. 1:02
2. In a bowl, mix the carrots and ginger with the salt (2 tbsp coarse or 1 tbsp fine sea salt) and pound with a pounder or potato masher, or squeeze with clean hands, for about a minute until the juices run. 1:34
3. Pack into a clean quart (1 litre) jar, pressing down hard until the juice rises over the carrots. Keep a little filtered water on hand to top up if there isn't enough liquid. 6:08
4. Set a glass weight (or a small jelly jar) on top so everything stays under the liquid, and fit an airlock lid — or use a regular lid and loosen it to let gas out once it starts bubbling. 11:27
5. Leave at room temperature for 2–3 days in a warm kitchen (5–7 days if cold). Taste with a clean spoon; when it is tangy enough, put on a storage lid and refrigerate. 11:53

> Tip Makes about 480 g, roughly 12 quarter-cup serves (our estimate). Next time, start the batch with 60 ml of this juice and only 1 tbsp coarse salt, as the cook suggests. Good on salads.
