Filipino Chicken Adobo

120 min · Serves 4 · 376 kcal a serve · Video 13:24 · Panlasang Pinoy

No dairy listed · No nuts listed

A braise of chicken, garlic, vinegar and pepper with only a teaspoon of sugar, unlike sweeter adobo versions. One serve gives about 30 g of protein, plus B vitamins and selenium from the chicken.

Diet notes: Keto (3.3 g net carbs a serve); Paleo with a swap: coconut aminos instead of the soy sauce, olive, avocado or coconut oil instead of the canola or vegetable oil, leave out the sugar; Gluten-free with a swap: Use tamari instead of soy sauce.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Cut the chicken into serving pieces. Crush the garlic well, mix it through the chicken with the soy sauce and marinate for at least 1 hour, ideally 3. Keep the vinegar for later. 1:32
2. Heat the oil in a pot over high heat. Lift the chicken out of the marinade and brown it in batches, about 2 minutes per side. It doesn't need to cook through (this step is optional). 3:00
3. Pour in the leftover marinade and the water and scrape up the browned bits. Return the chicken, add the cracked peppercorns and bay leaves, cover and bring to the boil. 5:04
4. Turn the heat to low and simmer 25–30 minutes, turning the chicken halfway and leaving the lid off for the second half so the liquid reduces. 6:50
5. Pour in the vinegar without stirring, cover and let it come back to the boil, then stir. Add the sugar if using and simmer a few minutes more. 7:40
6. Lift out the chicken so it doesn't overcook, season the sauce with the salt and boil until reduced to your liking, then pour it over the chicken. Serve with rice. 10:00

> Tip Serves 4 with rice. For a leaner adobo, take the skin off, skip the browning and use 1 tbsp oil. It tastes even better the next day; keeps 4 days in the fridge.

The method is a summary in our words — the video shows every step.
