Almond flour, coconut and brown butter replace the oats, flour and golden syrup, sweetened with a monk fruit and erythritol syrup: about 2 g net carbs and nearly 3 g fibre a biscuit.

Diet notes: Keto (1.9 g net carbs a serve).

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Heat the oven to 320°F and line a large tray with baking paper. Melt the butter in a small saucepan over medium heat and let it bubble until the foam dies down and it turns nutty brown. 2:30
2. Take the pan off the heat, add the sugar-free golden syrup, then return it to the heat and simmer 2–3 minutes until it comes together. 3:41
3. Stir in the bicarb soda (it foams up like honeycomb), then take the pan off the heat. 4:18
4. Stir in the salt and half the almond flour, coconut flour and coconut flakes, then the rest, until a dough forms. 4:47
5. Roll the dough into 16 tablespoon-sized balls on the tray, then press each flat with a lightly oiled fork. They won't spread. 6:22
6. Bake about 12 minutes until golden brown. Cool on the tray for 5 minutes, then on a wire rack until completely cool. 8:11

> Tip These come out soft and crumbly rather than crunchy, as the cooks point out; the coconut flakes stand in for the oats' texture. Browning the butter is optional but adds a caramel flavour.
