Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Heat the oven to 350°F. Grease two 8 inch round cake pans, line the bases with baking paper and grease the paper too. 0:41
2. In a large bowl whisk the almond flour, Swerve, cocoa, baking powder, espresso powder and salt. 1:20
3. Stir in the mayonnaise, eggs, water and vanilla until combined (there is no other oil). 1:56
4. Divide the batter between the pans, smooth the tops and bake 20–25 minutes, until just firm with a little bounce. 2:25
5. Let the layers cool in their pans for about 20 minutes, then cool completely. 2:53
6. For the frosting, melt the chocolate with 1 tbsp of the coconut oil in 30-second microwave bursts, stirring between, and let it cool. 3:24
7. Beat the rest of the coconut oil (soft, not firm) with the dairy-free cream cheese until smooth, beat in the powdered Swerve and vanilla, then the melted chocolate. Thin with coconut milk a few spoonfuls at a time. 3:50
8. Run a knife around the pans and turn the layers out. Spread a third of the frosting on one layer, top with the second, frost the top and sides, then chill 20–30 minutes to firm up. 5:35

> Tip Grease the pans with oil instead of butter and the whole cake is dairy-free. Use refined coconut oil if you don't want a coconut taste. The cook adds sugar-free sprinkles. Keep it in the fridge.
