Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Heat the oven to 165°C. Rub butter into every crevice of a bundt pan, spray it with oil and brush it around, then dust the pan with a little almond flour. 0:46
2. Whisk the almond flour, coconut flour, whey protein, baking powder and salt, breaking up any clumps. 1:25
3. Beat the softened butter with the Swerve until creamy and fluffy. 2:02
4. Beat in the eggs, then the vanilla, scraping down the bowl now and then. 2:22
5. Beat in the dry ingredients all at once, then the cream and water, to a thick batter. 2:59
6. Spread the batter evenly in the pan and bake 50–60 minutes, until golden brown and firm on top. 3:21
7. For the butter syrup, melt the butter with the Swerve and allulose, stirring until they dissolve. Off the heat, whisk in the water and vanilla. 4:03
8. Poke holes all over the warm cake with a skewer and pour over the syrup. Cool about an hour in the pan, loosen the edges and turn out onto a plate. 5:00

> Tip No allulose? The cook says use more Swerve; the syrup just won't be as syrupy. Her written recipe dusts the cake with confectioners Swerve. Don't leave it in the pan too long or it sticks.
