Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Whisk the almond flour, baking powder and salt in a bowl, breaking up any clumps, and set aside. 0:37
2. Beat the very soft butter with the granular Swerve for 2–3 minutes, until fluffy. 1:02
3. Beat in the egg and almond extract until creamy, then add the almond flour mixture and beat until a soft dough comes together. 1:25
4. Roll into 1 inch balls (about 24) on a lined baking sheet, press each to about ½ inch (1/2 in) thick and make a well in the centre with your thumb or a teaspoon. 2:00
5. Bake at 325°F for 12–15 minutes, until the edges are golden. Cool a few minutes, then gently reshape the wells, and let them cool and firm up. 2:46
6. For the jam, bring the raspberries and water to a boil, then simmer about 5 minutes, mashing the berries. Off the heat, stir in the powdered Swerve, then whisk in the gelatin. 3:11
7. Cool the jam about 20 minutes, until thick but not set. Dust the cookies with powdered sweetener, spoon about 1/2 tsp jam into each well and let set for 1 hour. 4:25

> Tip Use regular gelatin, not collagen, or the jam won't set. For dairy-free, the cook suggests softened coconut oil instead of butter. Frozen raspberries work as well as fresh.
