Labneh Balls with Za'atar or Aleppo Pepper in Oil

40 min · plus about 3 days straining and drying · Makes 10 × 1 ball (40 g before drying) · 81 kcal a portion

Video 8:09 · Middle Eats

Vegetarian · Gluten-free ingredients · No nuts listed

Made from just yoghurt and salt, each ball is about 80 kcal with about 2 g carbs, including the oil that clings to it: a tangy, lighter swap for the same amount of cream cheese (about 135 kcal).

Diet notes: Keto (1.8 g net carbs a serve).

Ingredients

5 · MAKES 10 × 1 BALL (40 G BEFORE DRYING)

- [ ] 2¼ lb plain dairy yoghurt with live cultures (unstrained), strained 48 hours (about 14 oz labneh)
- [ ] ¾ tsp salt (about 40% stays in the labneh; the rest drains off with the whey)
- [ ] za'atar, for coating half the balls (about 1 g a ball)
- [ ] Aleppo pepper, for coating the other half (about 1 g a ball)
- [ ] vegetable oil, to cover the balls in the jar, topped with a little olive oil (count about 1 tsp a ball eaten with it)

Method

TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Wash and sterilise the cloth or nut-milk bag, bowls and jars to keep mould away. Mix 2¼ lb plain yoghurt with live cultures and ¾ tsp salt very well. 1:02
2. Spoon it into the bag, gather the yoghurt at the bottom and clip the bag tight above it. Hang it over a bowl or set it in a strainer for 48 hours, emptying the whey and flipping the bag after 24 hours. Strain in the fridge for a milder taste. 1:31
3. Stir the labneh (about 14 oz) smooth. With two spoons, drop 1½ oz blobs onto a tray lined with a tea towel and paper towels, cover with more towels and leave about 24 hours, moving them to dry towels halfway, until firm. 3:15
4. Wearing gloves, knead each piece until pliable, then roll it between your palms into a smooth ball with no cracks so it holds together in the jar. 4:38
5. Roll half the balls in za'atar and half in Aleppo pepper, pressing the coating on. Stack them in sterilised jars and cover completely with vegetable oil topped with a little olive oil; olive oil alone suits jars eaten within a few weeks. 5:17
6. Seal. Kept cool, the jars last a few months; once opened, keep in the fridge and eat within a few weeks. Spread a ball on bread with sliced tomato, olives and mint. 6:18

> Tip Middle Eats sterilises everything with baby-bottle tablets, as any wet spot can grow mould. Throw out any ball that shows mould. For a soft spread instead, strain only 24 hours and keep it in the fridge for 1–2 weeks.
