Lean rabbit gives about 38 g of protein a serve, and the mustard and cream sauce has no flour or sugar, so it stays under 2 g net carbs.

Diet notes: Keto (1.8 g net carbs a serve).

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Heat the oven to 180 °C. Mix the mustard with a little salt, pepper and the olive oil to make a thick coating. 0:22
2. Brush the rabbit legs generously all over with the mustard mixture (it mellows in the oven). Put a drizzle of oil in a casserole, lay the legs in it and bake for about 10 minutes, just until lightly coloured. 0:36
3. Off the heat, pour the water in between the legs without washing off the crust. Bring briefly to the boil, cover and return to the oven at 180 °C for 15–20 minutes until cooked through. 1:04
4. Lift out the rabbit and reduce the cooking juices over medium heat until almost dry. Deglaze with the white wine and let it evaporate again. 1:22
5. Add the cream, bring to the boil, then simmer until the sauce thickens enough to coat a spoon. 1:51
6. Spoon the sauce over the rabbit legs and serve. 2:07

> Tip Serves 4 (one leg each). Rabbit legs vary; about 220 g with bone is typical. The chef suggests potatoes, mash, a little rice or green vegetables, with one side that soaks up the sauce; green beans or cauliflower mash keep it low in carbs.
