Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Heat the oven to 350°F and line a baking sheet with parchment. Beat the softened butter until fluffy, then beat in the sweetener until it looks like whipped butter. 1:08
2. Add the eggs, almond milk, vanilla, almond flour, coconut flour and baking powder and mix to a smooth batter. Spread it thinly and evenly over the tray. 1:53
3. Bake about 15 minutes, until the edges are just starting to brown and a knife comes out clean. Prick the warm sponge all over with a toothpick and let it cool (it is fragile while warm). 3:27
4. In a well-chilled bowl, whip the cream with the powdered allulose and vanilla until fluffy. Add the mascarpone and beat briefly until thick and velvety. 4:53
5. Cut the sponge to fit an 8 inch square dish and lay in a layer, patching any gaps. Brush it generously with strong coffee and spread over half the cream. Repeat with sponge, coffee and the rest of the cream. 6:39
6. Dust the top with cocoa and chill a few hours to firm up before cutting into 10 pieces. 8:36

> Tip Make the coffee strong, or its flavour gets lost. The cook leaves out the optional rum. Keep leftovers covered in the fridge.
