Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Set an electric pressure cooker to sauté (or use a heavy pot), melt the ghee and fry the onion until soft. 1:14
2. Add the ginger, garlic and sliced red chillies and stir until fragrant. 2:05
3. Stir in the baharat, black pepper, cinnamon and turmeric for a few seconds. 3:13
4. Add the lamb and turn it in the spiced onions until it loses its pink colour and starts to brown. 3:49
5. Add the pierced dried limes, the blended tomatoes, the tomato paste, the salt and a little hot water. Close the lid and pressure-cook until the lamb is tender. 4:40
6. Release the pressure, stir in the okra, close again and pressure-cook for 3 minutes, then release the pressure straight away so the okra stays whole. 6:04
7. Spoon into a serving dish and serve hot. 7:56

> Tip Serves about 6 (our estimate). In a regular pot, simmer the lamb covered until tender before adding the okra for 10–15 minutes. Usually eaten with white rice; cauliflower rice keeps it low-carb. Halve the salt if you prefer.
