Classic Miso Soup with Tofu and Wakame

20 min · Serves 4 · 72 kcal a serve · Video 3:47 · Just One Cookbook

Gluten-free ingredients · No dairy listed · No nuts listed

A light soup of fermented miso, tofu and seaweed: about 70 kcal a bowl with no added sugar. It is salty (about 1,200 mg sodium a bowl), so pair it with low-salt dishes; kombu-only dashi makes it plant-based.

Diet notes: Low carb (6 g net carbs) but not keto: 31% of the energy is from fat, and keto meals get about 60% or more; Vegan if you leave out the dashi; Vegetarian with a swap for the dashi; Low saturated fat (0.4 g, 5% of the energy).

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Make dashi: put 950 ml of water and the kombu in a saucepan (soak 30 minutes to overnight if you have time). Heat slowly over medium-low and lift out the kombu just before the water boils so it does not turn slimy or bitter. 0:41
2. Add a cup of katsuobushi, bring back to the boil, simmer 30 seconds, then turn off the heat and let the flakes sink for about 10 minutes. Strain. Shortcut: simmer 2 dashi packets in 950 ml of water for 2–3 minutes instead. 1:13
3. Bring the dashi to a gentle simmer, turn off the heat and dissolve 4–5 tablespoons of miso through a strainer or with a whisk. Taste and add a little more miso if needed, or dilute with dashi if it is too strong. 2:06
4. Add the cubed tofu after the miso so it stays intact, then stir in the dried wakame. Reheat gently until hot but never let it boil, which dulls the flavour and aroma. 2:34
5. Ladle into bowls and top with thinly sliced green onion. 3:16

> Tip Miso is salty, so start with 4 tablespoons and taste. Dashi keeps 5 days in the fridge or 2 weeks frozen; add the miso only to the portion you are serving. Avoid miso with dashi already added.
