About 21 g protein and 6 g net carbs a serve from beef mince cooked down with chayote, carrot, sweet pepper, onion, celery and tomato in their own juices, a low-carb main.

Diet notes: Low carb (6.4 g net carbs) but not keto: 58% of the energy is from fat, and keto meals get about 60% or more; Paleo with a swap: coconut aminos instead of the soy sauce; Gluten-free with a swap: Use tamari instead of soy sauce to keep it gluten-free.

Allergens found in the listed ingredients: Gluten, Soy, Celery, Mustard. Worked out from the ingredient list, not tested. Stock, sauces, spice mixes and other packaged foods can contain allergens, so always read the labels on what you buy. If you have a food allergy, don't rely on this.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Finely dice the carrot, chile dulce (sweet pepper), red onion and celery (120 ml of each) and chop 120 ml of tomato. 2:06
2. In a bowl, mix the beef mince with the soy sauce, the mustard and the chopped tomato. 2:20
3. Peel the chayotes (wear gloves if they are the spiny kind) and cut them into small dice, seeds and all. 4:14
4. Heat the oil in a large, deep frying pan over medium heat, add the celery, chile dulce, onion and carrot and sauté for about 5 minutes. 5:58
5. Add the seasoned mince and cook, breaking it up well (a potato masher helps), until it is no longer pink. 7:50
6. Stir in the diced chayote, then season with the turmeric, salt and pepper and mix well. 9:52
7. Cook over medium heat for about 15 minutes without adding water (the chayote releases its own juice), stirring now and then, until the chayote is tender. 12:27

> Tip Serves 5, as the cook says. Costa Ricans eat it with white rice or in corn tortillas; for fewer carbs serve it on its own or with a salad. Zucchini can stand in for chayote.

The method is a summary in our words, in English — the video (in Spanish) shows every step.
