Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Bring a pot of water to a full boil. Dip the pork belly skin-side down for about 1 minute, then meat-side down for 30–45 seconds. Move it to cold water, scrape the skin clean and pat dry. 0:32
2. Prick the skin all over with a fork or toothpicks, going right through the skin — the more holes, the crispier it gets. 2:29
3. Turn it over and score the meat side in a shallow grid, stopping short of the skin. Rub in the mixed five-spice, peppers, garlic salt and ½ tsp salt. Stir the leftover rub with the bean sauce and sugar and spread it on the meat only. 3:33
4. Set the pork skin-side up on a foil tray with raised edges. Rub the 1 Tbsp salt over the skin, leave 5 minutes, then wipe off the salt and moisture and brush on the vinegar. Refrigerate uncovered for 10–12 hours until the skin is very dry. 6:21
5. Heat a full-size oven to 375 °F. Put ½ cup water in a roasting pan with a rack and set the pork on it. Turn the oven down to 350 °F and roast 20–25 minutes. 10:43
6. Raise the heat to 400 °F and roast another 30–35 minutes until the skin is puffed and crackling, checking through the oven light near the end. (In a toaster oven use temperatures 25 °F higher.) 12:06
7. Rest the pork for 1 hour, then cut it skin-side up along the scored lines into bite-size pieces. 12:53

> Tip Rice is the usual partner; for keto, serve it with steamed greens such as gai lan. Nutrition is for the raw belly: fat that renders into the pan isn't subtracted. Leftovers keep 2–3 days chilled; re-crisp in the oven or air fryer.
