High-Protein Spanish Scrambled Eggs with Chickpeas

20 min · Serves 4 · 341 kcal a serve · Video 6:45 · Spain on a Fork

Gluten-free ingredients · No nuts listed

Eggs and chickpeas give 18 g protein and 7.5 g fibre a serve, and the peppers and spinach make it rich in vitamins A, C and K — the fibre and protein slow down the carbs from the chickpeas.

Diet notes: Vegetarian with a vegetarian hard cheese instead of the manchego cheese (traditionally made with animal rennet).

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Finely chop the onion, roughly chop the garlic, finely chop both bell peppers and roughly chop the spinach. 0:48
2. Drain and rinse the chickpeas. Crack the eggs into a bowl, season with a little salt and pepper and whisk well. 1:18
3. Heat a large non-stick pan over medium heat with the olive oil. After a minute add all the chopped vegetables except the spinach and sauté 4–5 minutes, stirring often. 2:08
4. Stir in the smoked paprika and oregano so they coat the vegetables. 2:48
5. Add the spinach and stir about 1 minute until wilted, then add the chickpeas, season with salt and pepper and mix gently so they don't break. 3:22
6. Lower the heat to medium-low, pour in the eggs and keep stirring 2–3 minutes until just cooked through — don't overcook or they turn rubbery. 4:08
7. Tip into a serving dish and finely grate the Manchego over the top; garnish with parsley if you like. 4:37

> Tip Frozen spinach works if fully thawed and squeezed dry. Any hard cheese can replace the Manchego. The cook's card gives 4 servings of about 296 kcal.
