About 100 g of tuna per serve gives roughly 30 g of protein and more than a day's vitamin B12 and selenium, in a coconut-free gravy soured with goraka. Just 2 tbsp of oil for the whole pot.

Diet notes: Low saturated fat (1 g, 4% of the energy); Paleo with a swap: olive, avocado or coconut oil instead of the oil.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Toss the tuna chunks with the salt, 1 tsp pepper and the turmeric and leave to marinate while you prepare everything else. 0:23
2. Grind the goraka cream, garlic, cardamom and cloves to a coarse paste. 0:58
3. Heat the oil in a clay pot or heavy pan. Add the mustard seeds, then the onion, curry leaves, pandan, green chillies and cinnamon and stir-fry until fragrant. 1:24
4. Add the chilli powder, roasted curry powder, curry powder and the goraka paste and stir constantly for about a minute so the spices toast without burning. 2:15
5. Pour in the water, add the fenugreek and salt to taste, and boil for 2 minutes over high heat. 2:47
6. Add the tuna, mix gently and cook for 7–8 minutes over medium heat until just cooked through. Sprinkle over 1 tsp pepper, mix briefly and serve with rice. 3:09

> Tip Serves 4 (our estimate). It is fiery: halve the chilli powder for a milder curry. Goraka is sold at Sri Lankan grocers; 1 tbsp tamarind paste works instead. Keeps 2 days in the fridge.
