Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Set a glass or ceramic bowl over a pan of barely simmering water (a metal bowl can give the curd a tinny taste). 1:07
2. Put the eggs, lemon zest, lemon juice, powdered erythritol and allulose in the bowl. 1:22
3. Whisk to combine, bring the water to a gentle simmer and keep whisking almost constantly; it can take 10–15 minutes to thicken, so don't walk away. 2:02
4. When it turns from clear to opaque and the whisk starts leaving tracks, lift the bowl off the pan straight away. 2:31
5. Add the butter pieces and whisk as they melt until smooth and creamy. 3:06
6. Chill for 2–3 hours until it firms up; press plastic wrap onto the surface if you don't want a skin. 3:20

> Tip Allulose keeps it soft; erythritol alone can turn gritty in the fridge. The video batch makes about 240 ml (serves are our estimate); the cook's written recipe uses 3 eggs. Keeps a week in a jar in the fridge.
