Sugar-Free Low-Carb Orange Chicken, Takeout Style

40 min · Serves 3 · 511 kcal a serve · Video 13:50 · Low Carb Love

No nuts listed

Protein powder replaces the flour coating and the sauce is sweetened without sugar, so a serve has about 4 g net carbs and over 45 g protein.

Diet notes: Low carb (3.6 g net carbs) but not keto: 59% of the energy is from fat, and keto meals get about 60% or more; Gluten-free with a swap: Use tamari or coconut aminos instead of soy sauce to keep it gluten-free.

Allergens found in the listed ingredients: Gluten, Egg, Milk, Sesame, Soy. Worked out from the ingredient list, not tested. Stock, sauces, spice mixes and other packaged foods can contain allergens, so always read the labels on what you buy. If you have a food allergy, don't rely on this.

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Cut the chicken thighs into bite-size pieces. 0:31
2. Season the protein powder with the salt, pepper and ¼ tsp ground ginger and whisk it together. Whisk the eggs in a second bowl. 1:02
3. Dip each piece of chicken in egg, then roll it in the seasoned protein powder until well coated and set it on a clean plate. Go slowly so the powder doesn't clump. 2:15
4. For the sauce, mix the water, vinegar, soy sauce, ground ginger, garlic, red pepper flakes, orange zest, sweetener and sesame oil. Taste — if using erythritol or monk fruit, start with half the sweetener. 3:23
5. Heat about ½ cup olive oil in a pan over medium heat and shallow-fry the chicken in batches, shaking off excess powder, about 3 minutes a side until crisp and brown. Set aside. 6:18
6. In a clean pan heat ½ tbsp oil, pour in the sauce and bring to a simmer. Whisk the xanthan gum into a splash of water, stir it in until dissolved and let the sauce thicken. 7:49
7. Add the chicken and toss until coated and the sauce is as thick as you like. Scatter with green onion. 10:17

> Tip The cook made 2–3 serves; we use 3. Serve with cauliflower rice or stir-fried greens. Coconut aminos can replace the soy sauce. Chicken breast works too.
