Chickpeas and mushrooms replace the usual pork, so this mapo tofu is plant-based and low in saturated fat, with plenty of folate, vitamin K and plant omega-3. Dried shiitake give a meaty, savoury depth without stock cubes.

Diet notes: Low saturated fat (1.4 g, 5% of the energy).

Ingredients 15 · SERVES 4

- [ ] 4 dried shiitake mushrooms, simmered then finely diced
- [ ] 590 ml water (simmered with the mushrooms and kept as the sauce base)

Method TIMES = THE MOMENT IN THE VIDEO

1. Put the dried shiitake and water in a small covered saucepan, bring to a boil and simmer on medium for 10 minutes. Keep the liquid; cool the mushrooms, squeeze them out, remove the stalks and dice finely. 0:24
2. Meanwhile chop the green onions, roughly crush the chickpeas with a fork, cube the tofu and finely chop the garlic and ginger. 0:46
3. Toast the peppercorns in a dry pan for about a minute, then grind them in a mortar and pestle. 4:21
4. Heat the chilli oil over medium heat and sauté the chickpeas and mushrooms for 1–2 minutes, then add the garlic and ginger for another minute. 4:49
5. Stir in the chilli powder, ground pepper and doubanjiang, then pour in the mushroom water and season with the sugar, soy sauce and rice vinegar. 5:30
6. Slowly stir in the starch slurry until the sauce thickens, then gently fold in the tofu and heat through. Serve topped with green onion. 6:14

> Tip Serves 4 over rice (our estimate). Use 2 tbsp chilli oil for a milder, lighter version; leftovers keep for 3 days in the fridge.
